Registering for Draft Here

Precinct workers started early this morning registering draft age men in Mansfield and Richland county. In the above photo Lewis Hartman, 344 North Townview circle, is being registered in Ward 2, Precinct H. The registrars are Goldie Loesch, right, and Hazel Rizer, left. Hartman was No. 12 to register at that precinct.

YOUNG MEN OF COUNTY READY FOR SERVICE

Booths Opened at 7 A. M. and Close at 9 P. M.; More Workers Called.

2,500 SIGN AT NOON

President Broadcasts Message Declaring Muster Answers Dictator Challenge.

More than 10,000 of Richland county's sons from all walks of life placed themselves at the call of their country today by registering for military service under the country's first peacetime conscription law.

A check of precincts in the city at noon today revealed that approximately 2,500 young men of draft age had registered. On the basis of available figures, it was estimated 4,000 of the 10,000 draftees expected to register in the county during the day had been signed up by noon.

Throughout Ohio more than 800,000 young men between the ages of 21 and 35 lined up before volunteer registrars in about 8,000 Ohio precinct polling places to be listed for the draft, while the number to sign up in the nation was expected to reach 16,500,000 before the close of the day.

In Richland county and throughout the nation, registration booths opened at 7 a. m. and will close at 9 p. m., unless men are still waiting in line at that hour.

A. F. Porter, clerk of the county board of elections, sent out a call for volunteer workers, asking them to report at their own precincts to relieve those who went on duty early this morning.

During the day Porter and members of the election board called citizens in the various precincts by telephone and asked them to make arrangements to relieve workers at registration booths.

Porter said at noon that large numbers of volunteers had responded to the call and predicted that the registration would be completed on schedule.

More than 250 registrars were appointed by the county election board this week to handle registrations, but it became apparent in the early morning hours that the number would have to be increased. The registrars receive no pay.

Election board officials reiterated today that all men failing within the age limit must register in the precinct in which they live. All Shelby men were registering today at the City hall.

Part of Crowd That Welcomed Willkie

At top, part of the crowd of 8,000 that turned out this morning to welcome Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee to Mansfield and hear him speak from the rear platform of his train near the Erie station.

Makes Promise Of Economy In 10-Minute Talk

Huge Crowd Gives Republican Nominee Warm Greeting, Cheer as He Calls for Rise In Living Standards and Pleads for National Unity.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

A crowd estimated at more than 8,000 persons stood in the chill autumn air this morning to give a warm welcome to Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, who delivered a 10-minute address from the back platform of his 16-coach special train as it stopped in Mansfield while en route to Cincinnati.

The cheering throng heard the bushy-browed industrialist in his first visit to Mansfield plead for national unity and promise, if elected, to bring about an "expanding economy with a constantly rising standard of living."

In his second swing through the state in two weeks, Willkie was introduced by Congressman J. Harry McGregor who boarded the train at Kent early today. He was accompanied by Gov. John W. Bricker and Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland, candidate for U. S. senator, who joined the party during the stop here.

All received Willkie's "blessings," the presidential candidate introducing them to the crowd following his talk.

The train, on schedule, stopped between North Diamond and North Main streets exactly at 10 a. m. while the entire Mansfield police force augmented by state highway patrolmen and railroad officers held back the crowd which threatened at first to crowd up against the rear platform.

During the entire time the entourage stopped in the city, not a single partisan expression was demonstrated other than the enthusiasm expressed by the cheers which time after time greeted Willkie's statements.

"I believe in an expanding economy which constantly raises the standard of living of those who work," he told his audience. "Away with the static economy which says, 'this is a fixed price."

"Here in Ohio," he added, "We know that the prosperity of one group is the prosperity of all groups. We know that our people can't be divided into classes without damage to every group."

Willkie said he wanted more than the present social gains for laboring men, and added, "I know how to bring that kind of economy about."

He called for an "injection" to stop "this defeatism," declaring "America has but touched the borders of her achievement." He reiterated his proposal for White House conferences of representatives of labor, industry and agriculture in order to seek a common solution of their problems.

"If elected, I will call confer-

Schoolhouse Shelter Leveled By Bombers

Estimated 250 Tons of Bombs Dropped On London During Night By Nazi Luftwaffe; RAF Retaliates.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—Indicating that the famous world trade center was hit by a bomb, authorities today permitted announcement that the London stock exchange is "not at present available for business." The stock exchange is located in the heart of "The City" of England.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—A schoolhouse used as an air raid shelter was leveled by heavy bomb explosions in last night's mighty air attack on London which German raiders followed up today with a new assault at dawn.

Two big bombs hit the two-story schoolhouse squarely, but missed a trench shelter dug in a corner of the schoolyard. Rescue workers feared many were killed and injured. They did not know how many were in the building. Scores were in the trench shelter.

The biggest time bomb yet dropped on London lay unexploded and

BACKING: Turks See Russia Coming to Aid In Dardanelles

(By United Press)

ISTANBUL, Turkey—Soviet Russia will refuse to tolerate Axis blows against the Dardanelles straits or the Near East, the Turkish newspaper Son-Posta said today.

Both informed Turkish sources and the press agreed that the Russians might be prepared to acquiesce to German and Italian domination of the Balkans but asserted that the Soviets would spring to action the minute the Dardanelles are threatened.

"Perhaps the Soviets will consent to further sacrifices in order to conserve their non-belligerent position and to remain stronger against a tired Germany," the Son-Posta said. "They may remain indifferent to eventual German and Italian movements in the Balkans.

"But when it becomes a question of the straits and Istanbul, where Anatolia, Iran and Egypt are concerned, they will no longer tolerate this situation regardless of their position."

There was general belief by authoritative sources that the Ger-

INFORMED: Nazis Re-Assert Soviet Told of Troop Action

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Authoritative German quarters flatly reiterated today that the reich informed Soviet Russia in advance regarding the dispatch of German troops into Rumania.

(Editor's Note—This reiterated German assertion was made in the face of yesterday's announcement by the official Soviet (Tass) news agency that Russia had not received advance information regarding Nazi troop movements into Rumania.)

Today's German declaration reaffirmed a similar assertion contained in an official reich communique several days ago.

The entire question arose anew as a result of a Tass news agency announcement yesterday which specifically denied a version of the affair as published by the Copenhagen newspaper Politiken.

Authoritative German quarters in Berlin declared that Tass "did not deny anything else."

(Editor's Note—Following is the announcement issued yesterday by Tass:

("The Danish newspaper Politiken published a report from its Berlin correspondent saying: 'The Soviet government was informed at the time that German troops would be sent into Rumania. The Kremlin was informed of the aims and numbers of the troops.' Tass is authorized to state that this report does not correspond with the facts.")

Authentic German quarters replied affirmatively when asked whether a phrase in the recent German communique referring to "befriended powers" included Russia.

BAD HURRICANE

One of Worst Storms In Bombay History Wrecks Buildings.

BOMBAY, India—(AP)—One of the worst hurricanes in Bombay's history, with winds reaching 75 miles an hour, swept the city last night and this morning, damaging buildings and destroying between 50 and 100 fishing craft in the harbor.

Port authorities said many fishermen and others aboard the vessels were feared drowned.

OHIO FOR FDR, DAVEY CLAIMS

Former Governor In Talk At Rally Here Says Roosevelt Will Carry State.

Predicting that President Roosevelt will carry Ohio by a 300,000 majority at the Nov. 5 election, Martin L. Davey, last night forecast a victory by nearly the same majority for the entire state Democratic ticket.

Seeking his third term, the former governor addressed a rally attended by 1,500 persons who crowded into the Senior high school auditorium at a campaign rally last night.

In sharp contrast to his stormy seige with the national administration during his term in office, Davey praised the President's achievements and his ability to "guide the nation through the present period of world-wide strife."

"Franklin D. Roosevelt has guided the progress of our ship of state with a firm, steady hand," he told his audience. "The great commonwealth of Ohio will not drop the pilot in a storm."

Davey headlined a program dur-

'I Shook the Hand of the Next President,' Boy Yells

Youth Among Several Who Wormed Way Through Huge Throng to Get Willkie Handclasp.

"I shook the hand of the next president!" yelled an excited school boy who had wriggled his way through the throng that pressed shoulder to shoulder around the Willkie train, and had reached up a fairly clean hand to meet the presidential candidate. Willkie heard the youngster's shout and his booming laugh rang out.

The school boy was one of several persons who crowded around the rear platform of the Willkie train and reached up to grasp the hand of the man who hopes to carry the Republican standard to victory next month.

As the long train bearing Willkie and his party came into sight, a cheer went up from the crowd, and as the train moved slowly over the Diamond and Main street crossing of the Erie railroad the people tried to guess where the last car was most likely to stop. When it finally came to a stop near the Main

CHARGES DAVEY EVADED DRAFT

'Named Wife as Dependent' says Republican War Veteran.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — President Thomas L. Tallentire of the war veterans Republican club of Ohio declared in a statement today that Martin L. Davey evaded military service in 1917 by having his wife file an affidavit of dependency.

Tallentire, replying to Davey's Monday criticism of Gov. John W. Bricker for enlisting in 1917 as an army chaplain, said "we wonder that he (Davey) has the face to attack the war service of anyone, let alone Governor Bricker's."

Pays a Visit to Uncle Sam, And Describes How It Feels

By GEORGE SATTLER

Along with 10,000 other young men of draft age in Richland county, I went to my precinct polling place to talk things over with Uncle Sam today.

Uncle Sam in my case turned out to be George Davis and Charles N. Shultz, sans whiskers and star spangled coat tails, holding down the familiar surroundings of Precinct B, Second Ward.

When I arrived early this morning to present myself as a likely candidate for the U. S. army, I found only a few sleepy individuals ahead of me.

They looked as though they were taking it alright, so I didn't let the thing scare me. I boldly asked to be registered.

The whole thing was practically painless, and no trouble at all.

Shultz waved me to a chair and handed me something which he said would be worthwhile reading. It was a blank with instructions as to what questions I would be asked and how I was to answer them.

This completed, I moved on to Davis who proceeded to ask me a number of questions, such as my

'FORGET' GUARD, LAND IN JAIL

Two Richland Youths Face Military Hearing After Failing to Report.

Two Richland county men who are members of the Ohio National Guard will spend a considerable part of their year's federal training doing kitchen police or on the ditch digging squad—if army procedure is what it used to be.

Donald Call, 22, of Shelby, and Charles Phillips, 22, Mansfield, were taken in custody yesterday by Sheriff E. P. Long and Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman, at the request of the Ashland medical detachment of the Ohio National Guard, and were turned over to superior officers today.

Phillips, whose address had been Shelby, was located in an apartment on Marion avenue with his bride of three weeks. He told Long and Freeman he had hoped that the National Guard officers had forgotten all about him, because he wanted to "forget all about the Guard", and remain with his bride. Long explained that military officers have extremely good memories.

Call, who married about a year ago, said that he had expressed his intention of withdrawing from the guard some time ago but had not followed it up with a formal application for discharge.

The men were taken in custody here and turned over to a deputy sheriff of Ashland county, who returned them to military officers at Ashland, who will give the men a hearing today.

OPPOSES FDR

Sears Roebuck Chairman Sees War Result of Election.

MILWAUKEE — (INS) — Expressing his conviction that President Roosevelt, if re-elected, "will have us in a war within two to six months," Board Chairman Gen. Robert E. Wood of Sears Roebuck and company, today announced his support of Wendell L. Willkie.

General Wood, who has been closely identified in the past with New Deal councils, said he had voted twice for Mr. Roosevelt, "the first time with enthusiasm and the second with uncertainty." He added:

"Certainly I was for much of the New Deal. The first two times I was for Roosevelt, but not the third. I am opposed to the third term and perpetuation in office and am of the opinion if the president is re-elected he will have us in war within two to six months."

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

PLANNING to go dancing? Then you'll probably be looking for a new formal, and with all the pretty ones they're showing downtown just now, you shouldn't have any trouble at all in finding one. . . . If you'd like something a bit different, you'd most certainly be pleased with a frock which combines a black and white checked velveteen skirt with a white satin blouse, topped by a black velveteen bolero, trimmed in the checked material of the skirt. . . . And speaking of black velveteen boleros, one added an attractive note to a formal gown of gay roman striped taffeta.

Marianne

For something quite elegant enough to go to dinner and graceful enough for dancing was a gown of cocoa bean (a soft, light brown) chiffon, fashioned with a very full skirt, falling from a fitted girdle waistline. . . . It also featured wrist-length bishop sleeves and a round neckline, with a yoke of glistening golden sequins. . . . Sequins also added an attractive note to another dancing gown. . . . The black taffeta skirt had a bodice of aqua colored jersey—and the above-elbow sleeves and round neckline were edged in rows of black sequins and dots of more black sequins decorated it. . . . Silk jersey is still as style-right as it ever was, and a striking dinner gown in red was highlighted with a belt of hammered silver at the girdled waistline.

Evening coats this season have a new note—gold braid and brilliant jewels. . . . One pretty one of black velvet, at a local shop, had a gold braid and brilliants in multi-colored shades trimming the collar and front closing, as did another of black wool—with multi-colored braid put on in military style. . . . Parka hoods attached to formal coats are as practical as they are popular, and some white wool coats sport hoods lined with white or red velveteen.

* * *

WHILE we're on the subject of formal evening attire, I mustn't forget to tell you about the little corded silk under-arm purses, which are now available in white—to be dyed any color you might desire with your ensemble. . . . And these same corded purses come in other styles and larger sizes. . . . Some have zipper closings, while others feature gold frames with arm handles. . . . The shades are black, light brown, navy blue and dark green to harmonize with your fall wardrobe.

* * *

Do you remember the silent silver screen sirens of yesteryear? Well, the daring, wicked and subtle vamp of 1916 seems to have returned in the fashions of 1940—at least sultry black, sleek silhouettes and costume jewels are much in evidence, and so one of the leading manufacturers of make-up has recaptured the "wine, women and song" spirit with three dashing new shades of nail enamel, harmonizing lipstick and cheek stick (that cream rouge in stick form). . . . These color accents are "Pink Garter"—a sly blush rose that's smart with black, of course, and browns, grapes and blues. . . . "Scarlet Slipper"—a daring burnished scarlet, dramatic with blues and taupes as well as black. . . . And then "Black Mask"—which is more black than red and makes the hands seem startlingly pale and white when worn with lames, metal cloths and blacks. . . . A cunning feature of this new make-up is a package called the "Little Vamp," containing matched make-up in "Pink Garter" or "Scarlet Slipper." It costs no more than the products alone and makes an adorable gift. . . . A real pink garter with black lace bands the cellophane box, and a tiny scarlet slipper that you can wear on your lapel is attached to the garter.

NEW in sports gloves are the "sock-em" mitts, which are padded to resemble boxing gloves (on a small scale) in brown, red and blue kid. . . . And new in fluffy mittens are those over-sized brushed wool ones. Having leather palms and knitted wrist bands, they can be purchased in red, green, white and blue. . . . Oh, and by the way, if you're thinking about making an afghan, you'll be pleased to know that you can buy the yarns downtown now in all-wool four ply in all colors—with four tones of each shade and some variegated ones.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

8,000 WELCOME WILLKIE AS HE STOPS IN CITY

Huge Throng Gives Nominee Warm Greeting, Hears Him Promise Economy.

ences of all groups—labor, industry and agriculture—and will equally and jointly hear their problems," he stated.

"Together we will make an America strong in its democratic economy and so strong in its defenses that no dictator will ever seek to strike."

Willkie asserted that farmers and industrial workers enjoy prosperity or suffer depression at the same time, but that both would prosper if the nation's productive capacity is unleashed.

"The idea has been that if the farmer did not produce so much the prices on what he did produce would go up. But the worker, both employed and unemployed, knows what happens when food prices can go up faster than paychecks increase. He knows that under such an economy of scarcity he is required to pay more for what he buys for his family table."

"The farmer likewise knows after eight years of experience that this economy of scarcity contributes nothing to his standards of living and that only the adjustment of payments from the federal treasury have served to help the farmers and his family maintain a bare subsistence level.

The farmer also knows that if the products of the factory are fewer, their price is higher, and that the price grows higher as the purchasing power of the worker—the farmer's chief market—comes down.

"Everybody realizes," he added, "that the prosperity of a democracy can be developed only by producing more and better things at decreasing prices and ever higher standards for the farmer and the worker. This can be accomplished by more production and by constant attention to refinement of the machinery of distribution."

Willkie told the crowd that he wanted to develop a country where "every youth has a hope in life."

McGregor declared in introducing Willkie that it was a pleasure to introduce the "people's choice" for president. Bricker and Burton spoke only briefly, the governor predicting a Republican victory in November.

The Willkie special came to Mansfield from Kent where an unscheduled stop was made this morning to pick up a delegation of Ohio Republicans and newspapermen. Willkie, however, did not make an appearance.

Boarding the train with McGregor and Bricker were David S. Ingalls, Republican national committeeman, Cleveland; Katherine Kennedy Brown, national committeewoman, Dayton; Representative George H. Bender, Cleveland; and Mayor Lutz of Ashland.

The party will accompany Willkie to Cincinnati for a major speech on relief tonight. His platform address here was the first of four stops to be made before arriving in the Queen city. They include Marion, Springfield, Dayton and Hamilton.

Speaking at Marion an hour after leaving Mansfield, Willkie said, "In the closing days of the campaign, the foe will do its best to use its intrenched power but we will win."

In an address at Buffalo last night Willkie told men of draft age that although many of them have not had their full share in the way of life they were called upon to defend, they were registering now for "one more chance for freedom."

Discussing, "This life that we have had here in America," he said that "many of you, I know, have not had even an opportunity to share in it. Many of you are skeptical of it. Many of you, being skeptical, will even resent the sacrifice you are being called upon to make."

"I realize the injustice that has been done to you," he said. "I know that the roots of your trouble lie in stony ground. They lie in the mistakes of my generation. Let us recognize the simple truth. You, the young men, have not failed us . . . we have failed you.

"And I want to plead with you . . . Not to judge this cause to which you have been called — this great cause of freedom—by the mistakes that my generation has made, whether in private life or in office. Do not judge this cause by our failure to give you jobs . . . By our idle factories, our shabby houses, our stagnant markets, our squabbles and dissensions among ourselves . . . These are not the cause in which I would ask you to enlist.

"The cause I mean . . . is in that unknown future where free men must and shall exist. You . . . Who have in haste abandoned our American doctrines for other doctrines and creeds . . . I plead with you to judge us not what we have been but what we might become."

Physical Exams Reduce Ranks of Mansfield Guardsmen

12 REJECTED, 63 TO BE AT MILITARY CAMP

Examination of 800 From Nearby Cities Continues At City's Armory.

Physical examinations of about 800 Ohio National Guardsmen from this section of the state at the Mansfield armory today had reduced the ranks of Battery D, 134th F. A., from 75 to 63 enlisted men, chiefly because of imperfect teeth.

The examination, which started yesterday morning will continue through today with six examining physicians from guard headquarters in charge.

Capt. R. J. Nichols, commanding officer of the Mansfield unit, said today that 12 of his men had been rejected, 10 of them because of their teeth. Men with even partial plates are rejected, because the present army set-up is not prepared to replace them in case of loss, Nichols said.

This will leave the Mansfield unit far below what officers had anticipated, when it leaves here Oct. 21 for Ft. Shelby, Miss. Before the examinations, the battery had 75 enlisted men and five officers and Nichols had hoped to increase this to 99 through the one year enlistments which were to go into effect today.

This order to accept men for one year enlistments in the regular army was recinded early this week and the unit probably will go into training at its present enlistment, which is only three over the required figure.

Today about 40 men and officers of the battery went to the office of the board of elections to cast their absentee votes for the November election. Nichols said the others would vote before they leave here.

The first detachment of Ohio's 37th division of the National Guard —which now has become a part of the federal army—will start for Ft. Shelby today.

The first unit to leave the state for training is made up of 25 men of a company of military police, together with advance details from the 112th quartermaster regiment.

The war department announced yesterday the formal approval of the promotion of Major General Robert S. Beightler, Columbus, to command the Ohio division. Beightler, a veteran of two wars and a guardsman for the past 29 years, recently was given a year's leave of absence from his post as head of the state highway department by Governor Bricker.

Charlie Chaplin Finally Admits He Wed Pauline

NEW YORK—(INS)—What Hollywood has long suspected, that Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard were husband and wife, at last had public confirmation today from the film comedian himself.

In presenting Miss Goddard to a cheering audience after the Broadway premiere of his new picture last night, Charlie introduced her as "my wife." This, at least, was the first such public acknowledgement.

Broadway accorded the film a typically enthusiastic reception at the two theaters where it opened simultaneously. Scores of front page personages were in the audiences.

Nearly every one has heard of night football under the lights, but Fred E. Elder, scoutmaster of troop 13, claims to be one of the few people to witness a night football game "under the moon." Last week-end Elder took his troop to the R. B. Gardner farm for an over-night hike. The boys, according to Elder, decided that they'd stage their own night football game. Using a white pillow for a ball, the Scouts chose up sides and proceeded to play football, in the moon light, Elder refereed.

WILLKIE CLUB OPENS OFFICE

Mansfielders Intensify Vote Drive Among Independent, Non-Partisan Voters.

Simultaneously with Wendell Willkie's visit to Mansfield, the Richland county Willkie club opened its office this week at 55 North Diamond street and at the same time intensified its pre-election work among independent and non-partisan voters.

In charge of the headquarters is Charles Newcomb, chairman of the club. Newcomb said today that his staff of canvassers working this week numbers 75, but that this figure would be tripled the first of next week.

Purposes of the Willkie club in this county will be identical with the National Association of Willkie Clubs of America, and while it is entirely independent of the Republican clubs of the county, its program and work will augment that which is being done by the Republican groups.

Both Democrats and Republicans are enrolled as workers in the Willkie-for-President movement, Newcomb said, and their activities will be confined to non-partisan, independent and Democratic voters.

Newcomb said that plans are being made for Richland county to participate in the national observance of "No Third Term" day which is set for Oct. 23.

The fight against the third term, Newcomb said, would not stress the Willkie-Roosevelt battle, but would deal with the implications for a third term for any president of the United States.

Among the committee chairmen who are assisting in the Willkie drive for independent votes are Attorneys William M. Weldon and H. H. Schettler, Paul Eliot and Louis J. Ott.

The office of the club is open to the public and campaign supplies may be obtained there.

DEMS HURL 'TRICKERY' CHARGE AS CAMPAIGN SIGN GOES DOWN

Charges of "political chicanery" were hurled at the city administration today by Democratic campaign leaders following removal Monday of a Roosevelt-Davey campaign banner from the Main street-Park avenue west intersection by party workers after Mayor William J. Locke ordered the banner taken down.

The banner had been put up last week and was stretched from the Richland Trust building to the flag pole in Central park.

Democratic leaders said it was put in place after asking Locke for permission.

They charged that the mayor ordered the banner taken down Monday citing a 30-year-old ordinance which prohibits the placing of signs across city streets.

They cited similar instances of banners hung across thoroughfares pointing to Community fund, Red Cross and baseball club signs, charging that Locke had ordered the banner taken down because of political reasons.

Locke, however refused to discuss the matter. When asked if he had sanctioned the placing of the sign, a reporter was told to ask Atty. Charles Freehafer, member of the Democratic campaign committee.

He asserted that he had not "ordered" the sign removed.

Freehafer said he had asked and received permission to put the banner across the street, but that he had been called by the mayor several days later and told that an ordinance prohibited placing such signs over the streets. He said he was told to take it down.

Democratic leaders today were bemoaning the fact that they had paid $50 for the banner after permission had been granted to put it across the street and now they have no place to use it.

From Republican headquarters, it was learned that "pressure" had been brought to bear on the mayor to have the banner removed and that he had declined to discuss the matter with political leaders of the party.

SALE OF 20,000 TONS OF SCRAP METAL STUDIED

Exploratory Rights Granted on 250,000-Acre Tract Along Gulf Coast.

(By United Press)

MEXICO CITY — Mexico has granted to a Japanese-controlled company a huge "exploratory oil land" concession on the Gulf of Mexico, 425 miles from the Texas border and 1,300 air-line miles from the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal, and is considering the sale to Japan of 20,000 tons of scrap metal, now embargoed by the United States, it was disclosed today.

Diplomatic and foreign business quarters were greatly interested in the disclosure, partly because the land is on the gulf, from where any eventual oil would have to be sent through the Panama Canal to Japan, and partly because other foreign oil interests have explored the concession area and decided that, as regards oil, it was not promising.

"I do not believe the primary interest of the concessionaires is oil," an American business man commented.

It was made known that the ministry of economy had signed an agreement Sept. 13 allowing the Veracruzana Petroleum Co. five-year exploratory rights to a 250,000-acre tract of state land in Vera Cruz between Japala, the state capital, and the gulf coast village of Misantla.

The Veracruzana company is controlled by La Laguna Co., more than 51 per cent of the stock in which is Japanese owned.

Reliable informants reported that the great Japanese Mitsui company had outbid American buyers by at least $1.80 a ton for at least 20,000 tons of scrap metal owned by the government national petroleum administration.

It was pointed out that the United States had forbidden the sale of American scrap metal to Japan as a western hemisphere measure and that it was unlikely such a sale by Mexico would be welcomed in the United States.

Informants replied that the deal was considered because the petroleum administration badly needed cash and might be forced to sell to Japan because of the price differential of about $36,000.

Foreign observers said that it was easy to understand Japan's desire to get scrap metal but that its embarkation at this time on an uncertain oil seeking venture was puzzling. The concession area is only about 60 miles south of the rich Pozarica fields, but its land was superficially explored by at least one foreign company 20 years ago and never exploited.

Potential All-America Candidates Plentiful This Fall

Harmon Leads List

Michigan Back Looks Like Sure Bet; Kimbrough Also Impressive.

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK — (AP) — Scratch almost any college football team these days, and you'll uncover a potential All-America back — some of them legitimate.

All-America backfield nominations always have been plentiful, even in the days at the turn of the century when Yale's Bulldogs, now de-emphasized, dominated the football world.

Admittedly the returns barely are starting to come in, but early season reports from Associated Press football experts all over the land indicate two carry-overs from the 1939 All-America team are operating even more efficiently than a year ago. One is Thomas Dudley Harmon, the Michigan thunderbolt, and the other is John Alec Kimbrough, Texas A. and M.'s line-smasher.

Harmon's exploits thus far are all but incredible. The Wolverine star has scored 69 of the 88 points Michigan has scored and has passed for 12 points. Few can dissent when Tommy is called football's greatest runner since Red Grange.

Kimbrough is the same unstoppable line-rammer he was a year ago. This 222-pound battering ram spent four days in a Dallas hospital last week, ridding himself of a possible "strep" throat infection; went by plane Friday to Los Angeles, played 60 minutes against U. C. L. A. and scored the game's only touchdown.

Three other members of last year's second and third All-America teams are back—Paul Christman of Missouri; Don Scott of Ohio State, and Jack Crain of Texas. Christman has been handicapped by a leg injury, although he is passing as brilliantly as ever.

Scott has been somewhat overshadowed by his teammate, Jim Langhurst, so far. Crain, however, has picked up right where he left off and is called by most Southwest conference coaches the finest ball carrier the conference ever has known.

Ranking well up on the ball-carrying list are such stars as Bob Foxx, Tennessee; Jim (Sweet) Lalanne, North Carolina; Jack Jacobs, Oklahoma's Indian tailback; John (Junie) Hovious and Merle Hapes, Mississippi's triple threats; Bobby Robertson, Southern California; Jim Kisselburgh, Oregon State; Dean McAdams, Washington; Bill Sewell, Washington State and Harvey Johnson, Mississippi State.

Bill Dudley, Virginia; Tuffy Timmons, Clemson; Leo Stasica, Colorado; Hal McCullough, Cornell; Frank Reagan, Penn; Steve Filipowicz, Fordham; Bill Busik, Navy; Sal Mirabito, Syracuse; George Kracum, Pitt; Paul Governalie, Columbia; George Franck, Minnesota; Milt Piepul, Notre Dame; Bill DeCorrevont, Northwestern; Bill Green, Iowa; Herman Rohrig, Nebraska, George Paskvan, Wisconsin, and dozens more.

And how about the unsung heroes—the blocking backs? A few of these human bowling balls are known generally, but most of them are relegated to obscurity while the ball carriers gather the headlines.

Men Like Walter Matuszczak, Cornell's great blocker and play-caller; Forest Evashevski of Michigan and Jimmy Thomason of the Texas Aggies have been accorded general recognition.

But there are many others—Jimmy Ringgold, Wake Forest; Bobby Grubb, Tulane; Hersey Young, Denver; Will Mullaney, Southern Methodist; Henry Torzylowski, Boston college; Thornley Wood, Columbia; Johnny Harrell, Navy; George Peters, Oregon State.

* * *

The list should be longer, but most backs are just another name in the line-up.

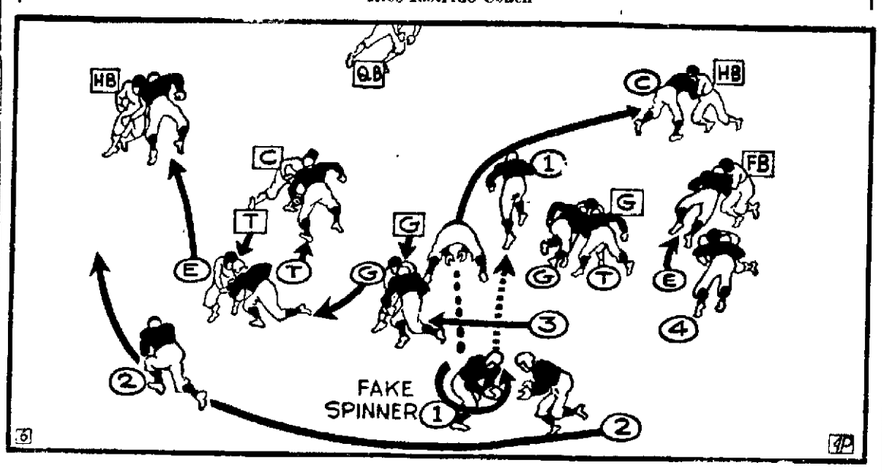
"I LIKE THIS PLAY"

By JESS NEELY

Rice Institue Coach



(Seventh In a Series)

This is the old familiar off-tackle play—one which we used frequently at Clemson. It is run from an unbalanced line. The offensive right end and halfback take out the enemy left tackle. The right tackle bumps the left guard and blocks the defensive center while the left tackle is blocking the left guard. The right guard pulls out, blocking the defensive left half and the center gets the right guard. The left guard also pulls out, blocking the defensive fullback. The left end checks the right tackle and then darts into the secondary. The quarterback and fullback block the left end. The tailback receives the ball, takes three steps to the right, cuts back inside end, and runs for a touchdown—if every blocker performs his assignment.

With the Mansfield high Tygers idle this week the junior high aggregations will take over Stadium field at 8 p. m. Friday. It will mark the first time junior high teams have met for a city championship.

In their last appearance on the gridiron the Johnny Appleseed players marked up a one-sided 43 to 0 victory over the Butler Junior high team.

BOWLING SCORES

The maples gave Mansfield keglers considerable trouble at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Not one of the bowlers hit the 600 total. Bob Ellis of the Motor Cargo, Inc., team in the Transportation league collected a 594 total for top individual honors. He registered his total on games of 182, 200 and 212.

Bart Haley of the Service Store club in the Mansfield Tire league, followed with a 561. He opened with a 157, hit 186 in the middle game, and soared to 218 in the last tilt.

BROOKLYN WILL ADD STRENGTH TO TEAM

NEW YORK — (NS) — "We've made more deals in the last couple of years than any other club in the National League and we expect to keep right on making them, although we haven't got anything on the fire right now," President Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said today in reply to persistent reports that he had already virtually closed several transactions.

MacPhail said that which ever club among the Cincinnati Reds, Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals is improved the most this winter will win the National League pennant next season, and the Dodgers won't lay back and let the parade pass by.

Shelby After Sixth Victory Against Mt. Vernon Saturday

SHELBY Shelby high school Whippets will seek their sixth consecutive football victory at 2:30 p. m. Saturday when they meet Mt. Vernon in a North Central conference game on W. W. Sipes' athletic field here in the first day game of the season.

Shelby and Mt. Vernon are tied with Marion for the lead in the N. C. O. circuit race.

Shelby, by virtue of its two N. C. O. victories over Willard and Crestline to date, is favored to win over the Yellow Jackets and Harding Presidents have only won one game each in league play.

The Whippets have beaten Ashland 7 to 6 and Bucyrus 21 to 13. Mt. Vernon defeated Galion 21 to 12 last week, while the Harding eleven won over Ashland 12 to 6.

Shelby also has defeated Norwalk, Willard and Crestline to run its conference record to five consecutive victories. The two games this fall.

Automotive Supplies Face Minerva Combine.

Coach Earl McMullen's Automotive Supply semi-pro team will attempt to register its first triumph of the season Sunday by invading Minerva to clash with the touted Minerva Merchants. The Minerva outfit is composed of erstwhile college stars and the Mansfield team faces a stiff assignment. Mansfield held Carrollton to a 6-6 deadlock last Sunday.

Officials Deny They Capture Grid Players

Gridders Seem To Like Southern Colleges.

By WILLIAM J. TUCKER.

ATLANTA, Ga. —(U.P.)— There are enough midwestern football players in Dixie for a rousing chorus of "I Left My Love in Massillon" but southern school officials deny that they were captured and brought across the Mason-Dixon line by raiding parties organized along the lines of Forrest's Cavalry.

In the southeastern conference, where southern grid power is concentrated, the rosters of Mississippi, Alabama and Tulane are generously sprinkled with products of the corn and wheat belt.

* * *

But it's all very simple, officials of the three schools say in answer to accusations from the midwest that the south has used cash to lure the huskies from home.

This Mississippi information bureau explains the presence of its midwestern players thusly:

Homer Hazel, jr., and his brother Billy came from Marshall, Mich., because the elder Homer Hazel coached at Mississippi from 1925 to 1929,and sent his boys to the school of his choice. The Hazels are starting linemen for this year's rebel team.

Two other old Miss. players came south because of their connections with the Hazels, and Chet Kozel and Bob Bernocchi, first team tackles, were brought down from Wisconsin by Backfield Coach Chuck Jaskwhich, who hails from Kenosha.

Dr. Wilbur C. Smith, Tulane athletic director, says that about 65 per cent of the Green Wave squad are southern boys and the rest are "mostly from the midwest, where our coaches are known personally, since three of them are natives of that section."

* * *

One midwesterner has won recent All-American recognition on a southern team—Guard Ed Molinsky, who comes from Massillon, O. Another Massillon product, Bob Glass, stars at halfback for the Tulane Green Wave.

PEPPER MARTIN TO PILOT PACIFIC COAST TEAM

NEW YORK—(NS)—It is with a feeling of personal loss as a baseball fan that we read of the passing of John Leonard (Pepper) Martin from the major leagues. He goes to Sacramento, of the Pacific Coast league, as a manager, and that California is hereby advised that its boasts the "tryingest" manager ever to walk across a diamond.

Not the best manager, mind you, any more than he was the best ball player of his time. But the fiercest, most uncompromising trier. For that is Johnny Martin's natural gait, and so long as he lives he'll never know how to travel any other way.

Madison Fighting to Mark Up Initial 1940 Grid Win

COACH AL FENDRICK'S Madison high school Rams, who this year sport one of the poorest grid records in the school's history, will make their sixth bid of the season for "that first victory" Friday night under the lights at the Madison field when the Rams play hosts to Norwalk high school.

The Rams, who have been "dogged" with bad luck since the season opened, dropped their fifth straight contest last week to Tiffin Junior Order by a score of 12 to 0.

Following the opening game with Wooster, eight of the regulars were suspended by Fendrick because of their participation in a reported theft episode at Wooster, and for three weeks the team was without the services of these players.

These players however have all been re-instated, according to Fendrick, and saw service in last week's game.

Return of these players to the line-up was noticed in last weeks loss. Play of the Rams in the Tiffin game showed improvement over previous contests and they gave a better account of themselves than the score would indicate.

* * *

As a preliminary to Friday's game Woodville school meets East Mansfield in a Madison township junior high school league tilt. The game is scheduled for 6:30 p. m.

Hockey Goalie Ends Career

35-Year-Old Thompson To Manage Buffalo Team.

DETROIT —(AP)— Without visible regret the greatest goalie in the modern history of Hockey said goodbye today to the big league and by his own choice ended a career in which he stopped an estimated 100,000 whistling shots from sailing into his net.

Thirty-five years old and the first to admit that his playing days are just about over, Cecil Tiny) Thompson, the greatest of the net minders for almost two decades, pulled out of Detroit last night for Buffalo where he will attempt to rebuild a last-place club into a contender in the American hockey league, a minor circuit.

Thompson carried with him a box containing the pads he has worn since he started goal minding for the Duluth club in the American association in 1924. He has worn them down through the years but he doesn't expect to use them much this season.

Behind him Thompson leaves innumerable hockey records. He is the only man to win the Georges Vezina award for goal tending proficiency four times.

* * *

Thompson is also the only goalie ever to make an assist in a major league game.

Former High School Teammates Leading Wildcats Back on Top.

By TOM SILER

EVANSTON — (AP) — Northwestern's return to football power is the story of a group of bewildered, deflated sophomores who refused to lose faith in their own ability to click in big time competition.

* * *

The Wildcats, surprise victors over Ohio State Saturday, are riding high with wonderful possibilities for the season because the players found a new spirit—"one for all and all for one"—to match their physical talent.

Big Alf Bauman, 215-pound junior tackle, and Bill De Correvont, ace halfback, are leading this parade back to the top, just as this pair sparked Chicago's Austin high to dazzling deeds three seasons ago.

Contrast Northwestern's present grid situation with that of just a year ago and you know that somewhere along the line a radical change has been wrought. Northwestern started in 1939 by losing to Oklahoma and Ohio State, scoring no points while the two rivals were piling up 36 points.

Now the Wildcats have smashed Syracuse and Ohio State, scoring only one less point than they tallied all last season, when a highly-rated senior-studded squad won only three games.

"I'll tell you one big difference in the two squads," said towheaded De Correvont. "Nobody on our club now is thinking of all-star ratings or anything like that. All we want to do is win football games and we don't care how we do it. Just score the most points, that's our goal."

"Yeah, we got a great bunch of fellows," echoed the massive Bauman. "Everybody is in shape and rarin' to go. We know we've got a tough job ahead, but that's okay, too. Right now our main thought is of Wisconsin. They're always tough."

* * *

Northwestern is off to a fine start, obviously, but the team's second string line still has to prove itself. The first stringers went almost all the way against Ohio State.

CARNEGIE TECH ELEVEN GIVEN LIGHT WORKOUT

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Coach Eddie Baker of Carnegie Tech, anxious to avoid any further injuries to his grid squad, limited pratice to only a light workout yesterday. Left End Joe Betz of Kingston, Pa., was chosen to captain the Tartans against Notre Dame this week-end.

Hunting Hints

By ROBERT OLDS

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Hunting hints: Here's a welcome note to all the Joe Sureshots who've complained for a long time that "You've gotta be a millionaire to hunt ducks in Ohio."

Today the state conservation division threw open 60,116 additional acres of land, including the big 14-lake Muskingum valley conservancy district, to duck hunters when the 60-day season opened at sunrise.

That's plenty of territory for the hunters who haven't been able to afford "five to 20 dollars or more a day" to hunt in the famous Sandusky marshes.

The Sandusky marshes, which extend from Huron westward along Lake Erie to the mouth of the Maumee river, at one time ranked nationally as a duck hunting spot.

A total of 105 812 acres of public lands were opened for duck hunting today including the Muskingum lands and all state-owned lakes except certain designated sanctuaries. Controlled hunting was put into effect in these areas.

For hunters who can't afford, or don't want to, shiver in a duck blind while waiting for a flock to decoy, there is "jump-shooting" and "pass-shooting."

E. P. Rinehart, one of the division's hunting experts, says he thinks jump-shooting is the "sportiest" kind of hunting. You take a canoe or boat far up a river, then drift down with the current ready to shoot when the boat passes a "pot hole" or bend where ducks may be resting.

For jump-shooting he likes the Muskingum river, Deer creek (near Marietta), Maumee river, Miami river and the Ohio.

Here's what you need for duck hunting: (a) $1 state hunting license; (b) $1 federal duck stamp (buy it at the postoffice and don't forget to sign it); (c) shotgun not larger than 10-gauge and not more than three shells in a repeater or automatic; (d) special $1 Ohio-Pennsylvania stamp if you hunt at the 5,540-acre jointly-operated Pymatuning reservoir (can be purchased at Andover, O.).

The rules — Shooting hours: sunrise to 4 p. m.; bag limit, 10 daily; possession limit, two days; restricted species, (three each or mixed daily), canvas backs, redheads, buffleheads, ruddy ducks, geese, three a day. Other, no feeding, no live decoys, no shooting from motor or sailboats.

* * *

The lands opened by the division for duck hunting: State lakes—St. Mary's, Loramie, Indian, Portage, Guilford, Buckeye, Alma, Kaiser, Van Buren, Pymatuning, Muskingum district—Charles Mill, Pleasant Hill, Mohicanville, Beach City, Bolivar, Dover, Atwood, Leesville, Tappan, Clendening, Piedmont, Senecaville, Wills creek Mohawk. Also the 10,000 acre Miami conservancy district

STEELS LEAD STOCK MARKET HIGHER TODAY

U. S. Rubber, Westinghouse Also in Rising Group; Coal Movement Down.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The steel group moved ahead today, leading most of the rest of the stock market a bit higher.

Among issues rising most of the time were Bethlehem, Youngstown, Crucible Steel, U. S. Rubber, Sperry, Westinghouse, and Eastman.

Bonds generally tended higher. Commodities were irregular. The London market held firm while gilt-edged issues advanced sharply.

Attracting attention to steels were reports from the industry that Great Britain was making new inquiries for additional supplies.

Boardrooms discussed an estimated contraseasonal drop of about 1,000 freight carloadings last week to 805,000. This compares with 844,000 in the like 1939 period.

It was noted that the drop was due mainly to a continued decline in bituminous coal movement, affecting the roads in the soft coal areas. On the other hand, agricultural roads showed improvement.

PAYS A VISIT TO UNCLE SAM

News-Journal Reporter of Draft Age Tells Just How It Feels.

age, name, address, date of birth and the like. All this information he put down on one side of the blank.

Then he turned the blank over, and began asking me more questions and writing the answers down. The questions on this side were chiefly about physical appearance.

He asked me my height, weight, took a look at my eyes and hair for color, and checked the appropriate squares on the card.

Only on one point did I have a little trouble. For my complexion he checked a square marked "dark." Being a newspaper man I held out for the "sallow" square. I lost.

From this card, which will be sent to the board of elections, he proceeded to fill out a smaller card from the information just received. He handed this to me and warned me that I was to carry it with me wherever I go.

It was as simple as that.

NAHANT, Mass. — (INS) — John Roosevelt, youngest son of the president, filled out his selective service questionnaire today at a local school.

Young Roosevelt has a wife and a son. He spoke in behalf of his father's campaign at a Boston rally last night.

FREMONT, — (AP) — Paul Derringer, Cincinnati Red pitcher registered today for possible military service. The mound ace was here for opening of the duck hunting season. Derringer said he would be 34 tomorrow.

CINCINNATI—(INS)—Campaign companions of Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie, who fall within the 21 to 35 age group, probably will register for selective military service in Cincinnati tonight.

Carl R. Wenzel, clerk of the Hamilton county board of elections, said that at the request of members of the candidate's party, he and three assistants would meet Willkie's train to register those within the age limits. Registration cards then will be forwarded to the local draft boards of the registrants.

KILLED BY FALL

FREMONT—(AP)—A fall at his plant several weeks ago proved fatal yesterday to William H. Price, 72, president of the Gibsonburg Lime Product and one of the founders of the Urschal-Bates Valve Bag company of Toledo.

Stocksade, 23-year-old former high school honor student, today awaited grand jury action on charges of first degree murder and shooting with intent to wound in the slaying of his mother and wounding of a gasoline station attendant.

The youth's mother, Mrs. Frank Stocksdale, was shot as she sat in her home reading the Bible. Police Chief John Walsh filed the murder charge against the son. Young Stocksdale also was accused of shooting Milo Hengsteller, a filling station attendant, a short time later.

BOMBS LEVEL SCHOOLHOUSE DURING RAID

250 Tons Dropped on London During Night By Nazis; RAF Retaliates.

menacing near a widely known building. Big explosives damaged a famous London square, filling streets with debris from smashed building fronts.

One terrific blast ripped a block of apartments to pieces, and a pastor sleeping in a nearby church basement told of crawling out and seeing the twisted bodies of dead and injured, some of them still in their beds, pinned beneath beams and blocks of concrete.

"We took the dead and badly injured out," he said, "and laid them on the pavement by the railings surrounding the church until ambulances removed them."

It was estimated unofficially that 250 tons of bombs were dropped on London by 200 to 250 Nazi planes during the night.

Daylight raiders were seen near two south coast towns.

A government communique described the overnight bombings as "indiscriminate" and said the attack on London was "heavy," but the damage was less than "in raids which took place in early September."

Homes, industrial premises and utility services were hardest hit, the communique reported.

Dwellings also were destroyed and fires started in an attack on a town in the Midlands, where some persons were killed and injured, but total casualties were described as not numerous considering the scale of the attack.

While London counted its dead, reports from the Midlands and southwestern England indicated the overnight pounding there was the longest and most severe of recent weeks.

The raiders slashed at London with particular fury. Diving warplanes machine-gunned the streets. High explosive bombs believed to be the largest Germany has were dumped along with smaller explosives of all kinds of fire bombs.

(Nazis in Berlin said more than 1,000 bombers dumped a ton of bombs each on London from dusk to dawn causing "indiscriminate chaos" that some said recalled the wreckage of Warsaw, Rotterdam and Dunkerque.)

The raiders, taking advantage of the clear, moonlight night, shuttled back and forth across the English channel ceaselessly. Sometimes they roared in over the English coast one a minute.

British planes countered again with extensive attacks.

The air ministry announced targets included naval bases at Kiel and Hamburg, a naval dockyard in northern Germany, communications, aluminum and oil facilities in western and central Germany, and channel ports.

(Berlin also had an alarm about midnight, but no planes were reported seen over the city.)

Large fires were reported started by RAF raids on the Nazi-held French port of Boulogne.

Declare Bombing Retaliatory

BERLIN —(U.P.)— Nazi informants said today that mass raids were continuing on London on a "very large scale in favorable weather after all night attacks, heaviest of the entire war, which left the city in a state of "unparalleled chaos."

During the night Nazis said, 1,000 German planes dropped 2,200,000 pounds of bombs on London in what they called reprisal raids for the alleged bombing of German civilians by the Royal Air force.

Informants said that a large percentage of the bombs were dropped on Silvertown-on-Thames, southeast of London, and that reconnaissance planes, flying over the area this morning, saw the ruins of factories, and supply centers.

Informants indicated that their all night attack had been one of the most terrible in aerial history.

They made it plain, however, that worse was to come.

Informants said that the beginning of German raids on London described as a ripple, with the final attacks to be of tidal wave proportions. They said that now the raids were about one-third of the way along the course from a ripple to a tidal wave.

Claim British Submarine Sunk

ROME—Sinking of the big British submarine Perseus after a violent artillery duel with the Italian submarine Toti in the central Mediterranean was reported today by the Italian high command.

The Italian craft hit the Perseus with shells and machine-gun bullets, the high command said, and then, maneuvering swiftly, launched a torpedo which finished the job.

The high command said the Italian submarine suffered only slight damage.

Stefani, official Italian news agency, reported Italian bombing planes yesterday afternoon sighted a considerable number of British warships, accompanied by an aircraft carrier, and bombed them effectively in spite of the fact British fighters took off from the aircraft carrier to engage them.

The Italian bombers later continued their flight, the agency said, and overtook a strongly-escorted convoy which was bombed while Hurricane fighters from another aircraft carrier gave battle.

"Numerous enemy ships were hit within a few hours," Stefani added. It reported all Italian planes returned to their bases.

Two explosions occurred aboard a British cruiser when it was attacked by a torpedo-carrying Italian plane Monday, Stefani said.

street crossing, the crowd moved in behind it like flood waters covering a field.

Just before the train arrived a number of workmen from nearby factories came out and joined the throng. Several factories gave their workers permission to take time off to hear the Willkie speech.

The morning sun acted as a spotlight on the big American flag which had been raised over a building just north of the Erie railroad tracks. The stiff breeze kept the red, white and blue waving in the background of the Willkie car, as though it had been placed there by a clever stage manager.

* * *

The famous Willkie personality came into full play when, at the end of his brief speech, he leaned out toward the crowd and said: "I've spoken in 30 states on this trip and everywhere the crowds have been greater than any of us have anticipated. And if you folks like me as well as I like you, the November election will be unanimous for Willkie."

* * *

Mrs. Willkie, who has been tremendously popular with crowds everywhere, got a bigger ovation from the crowd than her husband. She was not wearing her "campaign hat" which she has worn much of the time since the Elwood acceptance speech. She said then, "I'm going to wear this all of the time because it's my lucky hat." But today she had on a smart little hat in powder blue which matched her wool dress of the same shade. Her light coat was of dove grey with a lighter grey fur collar. She came out onto the platform carrying a huge bunch of yellow chrysanthemums backed with the yellow and red leaves of Ohio's October hills. Just before the train pulled out another big bouquet of chrysanthemums was handed up to her.

There were several hundred school children in the crowd which was estimated at 8,000 by trainmen, and 10,000 by city police. Mansfield can be proud of the way its youngsters behaved themselves. They were neither noisy nor boistrous, and if there were Roosevelt fans among them they kept quiet. There were no signs of the rowdyism which has come largely from the children of larger cities and from radical elements.

* * *

Several thousand persons had gathered at the railroad right-of-way between Diamond and Main streets by 9:30 a. m. It was a quiet crowd and a man in the crowd commented on it.

A woman wearing several Willkie badges answered him pertly:

"Republicans are never as noisy as Democrats!"

Governor John W. Bricker received a big welcome from the crowd, the school children especially whooping it up for the governor. When Bricker, Willkie and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland (candidate for U. S. senator) stood together, a woman commented:

"My, that's a handsome trio. They certainly look swell on a billboard!", referring to the political advertisement which carries the picture of the three.

man occupation of Rumania is only the first step of a much more extensive Axis program.

There was a lack of any official information, however, as to the attitude of the Soviets. Turkey has been working toward improvement of relations with Moscow but it was believed here that former proposals for a Balkan Slavic bloc of states was now abandoned.

Diplomatic activity between Turkey and Soviet Russia recently has been sharply increased.

Hear Yugoslavia Increases Guards

BUCHAREST —(INS)— Although they denied British reports that Soviet forces had entered northern Rumania, Bucharest authorities said today they had heard rumors that Yugoslavia is increasing its Danube river guards.

According to these advices, it was stated, the Yugoslavian reinforcements were keeping a close watch on German troops and war materials being shipped down the Danube into Rumania.

With large numbers of German forces now established in Rumania, Nazi warplanes were extremely active in the Ploesti oil fields region, constantly patrolling that area with the announced object of preventing sabotage or enemy air raids.

The German command in the Ploesti region also decided to send all Jews away from the immediate vicinity of the oil fields. An official announcement said evacuation of the Jewish residents will begin shortly.

Italian naval experts were expected to arrive shortly at Constanza, Rumanian Black sea port. Earlier reports stated that a German naval mission would reach Constanza soon and start work on enlargement of the naval base there.

The last contingent of British residents of Bucharest departed last night for Constanza to board a vessel for Istanbul. All but members of the British legation staff have left the city.

Germans Arrive At Albanian Port

LONDON—(INS)—"Several shiploads" of German troops have arrived at the Albanian Adriatic port of Durazzo, the London Daily Express reported today in a dispatch from Skoplju, Yugoslavia.

In addition, part of two German divisions are at the Italian port of Bari, Italy, the dispatch said, adding that 20,000 German troops are reported in Bulgaria.

The London News Chronicle said that German forces stationed along the Pruth river and around the Galatz area in Rumania were "openly boasting" that they are ready to check any further Russian moves.

Eden Arrives in Trouble Zone

LONDON—(INS)—In what was seen as a swift and dramatic move to prepare Great Britain's Near Eastern forces for the anticipated Italo-German winter offensive in the Mediterranean area, Secretary of State for War Anthony Eden arrived in Egypt today.

Official announcement of Eden's arrival there, presumably at Cairo, was made here.

10,000 SIGNED IN COUNTY FOR ARMY SERVICE

of draft age began to sign up under the conscription law, President Roosevelt today declared that the historic peacetime registration is the "keystone in the arch" of America's defense program to meet all threats of war.

At the same time, the president gave the potential conscription army a ringing slogan.

"Democracy is your cause," he said.

The president made his nationwide broadcast at 8 a. m. An hour earlier the country's men of draft age began to pour out of their homes to register.

The president struck a dual theme in his speech—first serving notice on the world that this nation was preparing to defend the western hemisphere from any aggression, and, secondly, assuring the men who will be given a year's training under the draft law that conscription was a "defense preparation only."

Obviously speaking to the world, Mr. Roosevelt stated:

"We prepare to keep the peace in this new world which free men have built for free men to live in."

On the dictator powers he served the following notice:

"Calmly, without fear and without hysteria, but with clear determination we are building guns and planes and tanks and ships—and all the other tools which modern defense requires. We are mobilizing our citizenship."

Men subject to the compulsory service law who fail to register, except for serious illness, will be liable to a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine. Special registrars visited men in hospitals today.

Young men away from home were permitted to register at any precinct voting booth. Approximately 2,000 filled in the 11-question registration card on the Ohio State university campus.

With a few scattered exceptions, the registration touched every man of draft age in the country. Only ones exempt from registration were members of the armed forces, the reserves, public health service, coast guard, coast and geodetic survey employes, and members of the diplomatic corps.

Today's registration of all men of military age is the first step in building up over the next five years a reserve of nearly 5,000,000 trained soldiers.

R-Day was not proclaimed a national holiday. In some states, however, school holidays were declared. Employers were asked to see that employes not only know that they must register, but that they were given sufficient time off to do so. The government set an example by giving all employes three and a half hours off—without loss of pay.

All registrants in Mansfield and throughout the nation were warned to insist upon receiving a registration certificate. Officials were expected to start demanding a show of the registration cards by every person of draft age at every opportunity.

Registration cards which will be filled out and kept by the registrars, will be sent to the local draft boards which will shuffle them like a deck of cards, number them from the top, and assign each a "serial number." The number will be used by national headquarters in the lottery to determine the order in which the registrants shall be classified for military service.

While the prospective draftees in Ohio were registering one or more representatives from each of the 330 draft boards attended a meeting in Columbus, presided over by Adj. Gen. Light, state draft director, to receive final instructions in their work which starts tomorrow. It is their job to decide which men go into the army and which ones stay at home.

Secretary of State George Neffner predicted that Ohio would be the first state in the Union to complete registration by utilizing its elaborate election machinery.

Registrars were instructed to treat registrants with consideration, but were advised to notify proper authorities if the registrant persists in refusal "to cooperate or is inclined to evade, refuses to answer or to answer falsely."

OHIO FOR FDR, DAVEY CLAIMS

Former Governor In Talk At Rally Here Says Roosevelt Will Carry State.

ing which district and county candidates spoke. He was introduced by Atty. John C. O'Donnell, Democratic executive committee chairman.

In behalf of his own candidacy, Davey reiterated his stand for repeal of the sales tax. He termed the tax as "unfair, unjust and expensive."

"It hits the poor and those who can ill afford to pay," he asserted.

He promised to remove the sales tax "when there has been found a just and equitable way to provide revenue which that tax now makes possible." He added, "It won't be on the poor, but on the basis of the ability to pay."

Twice governor of Ohio, Davey referred to John W. Bricker, his G. O. P. opponent, quite frequently during his talk, as "Brother Bricker."

He bombarded the governor in the typical Davey fashion asserting as he had earlier in Delaware and Bucyrus that Bricker allowed relief clients to "go hungry," reduced old age pensions and failed to give the jobless covered by unemployment insurance the "$15 a week to which they are entitled."

Little reference was made to the highway system, Davey declaring that "we haven't had a Democratic governor for two years and the roads have gotten in bad shape."

Earlier, Ralph C. Lutz, Lexington, county representative to the general assembly and candidate for congressman of the 17th district declared that the present national administration "is the first administration that ever produced a government for all the people."

Lutz termed Windell L. Willkie, the G. O. P. presidential candidate, as a man inexperienced in politics and international affairs, charging that the candidate in his acceptance speech at Elwood, Ind., several weeks ago "accepted everything the New Deal stands for."

Atty. Leslie Wagner, candidate for county representative, spoke in behalf of the county ticket citing the record of "efficient and economic government" administered by the candidates.

Other speakers included Edward R. Sterling, Canton, candidate for judge of the court of appeals; Prosecutor G. W. Marriott, candidate for probate judge; Assistant County Prosecutor Harold Lutz, candidate for county prosecutor; William F. Hurley and Maurice C. Brown, both of Lorain, candidates for state senator.

Candidates introduced were Ray Hout and Guy F. Stewart, seeking re-election to the board of county commissioners; Howard Wenning, candidate for clerk of courts; Frank Robinson, candidate for sheriff; Howard Sword, candidate for engineer; D. D. Orewiler, candidate for recorder; Charles Payne, candidate for treasurer; and Lewis B. McCullough, candidate for coroner.

During the meeting "Bub" Burns of Van Buren, Ark., brother of the famous radio comedian, entertained the crowd. Atty. Marshal Moore, campaign manager, presided.

Dem Caravan To Go To Mt. Vernon

More than 50 cars from Mansfield and Ashland wil lmake up a motor caravan which will leave here tomorrow night for the Democratic rally at Mt. Vernon at which Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., son of the president, will be the principal speaker.

The meeting, sponsored by the Young Democrats of the 17th congressional district, will be in charge of two Mansfielders, Miss Mary K. Newcomer, president of the Richland County Young Democrats, and John Correll, state chairman of organization and parliamentarian of the county group.

Miss Newcomer said today that the Ashland cars will come to Mansfield to make up a caravan of more than 50 cars, and that the caravan would be joined at Bellville by still others from that place and from Lexington.

The rally will be one of the biggest arranged for the 17th district, she said.

FDR Takes Full Control Over Defense Goods Export

PLANS SURVEY TO DETERMINE VITAL NEEDS

Necessity of Requisitioning Raw and Manufactured Products Studied.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today assumed full control over the sale or export of raw and manufactured products vital to the national defense program, after invoking the government's power to requisition any equipment, munitions, machinery, tools, materials or supplies needed to prepare the nation for any emergency.

In an executive order the president ordered the army and navy munitions board yesterday to make an immediate survey to determine the necessity for requisitioning any items deemed necessary for national defense purposes.

The board was authorized at the same time to determine whether it is in the public interest to sell, or otherwise dispose of, any of the articles or materials requisitioned.

The president's action was considered very far reaching and significant. Defense experts said that under that authority the United States could regain possession of many war materials, equipment and supplies already sold but not yet shipped to foreign countries and then either retain them, or dispose of them to other foreign countries or individuals.

President Roosevelt's recently proclaimed embargo on iron and steel scrap became effective at midnight. Prior to the embargo's effective date export licenses were required only for No. 1 grade scrap —now all 75 grades and categories are subject to the restrictions, and officials made no secret of their intentions to refuse all licenses except those for western hemisphere nations and Britain.

2ND MEDICAL LECTURES OFF

Addresses Scheduled For Today Postponed Until Thursday, Oct. 24.

The second session of the Ohio State Medical association's post-graduate lectures in Mansfield will be held Thursday afternoon and evening, Oct. 24, instead of this afternoon and tonight as previously scheduled, officials of the association announced today.

The postponement was made necessary in order to avoid conflict with an interstate meeting of medical associations in Cleveland.

Speakers at the session here next week will be Dr. Russell L. Haden and Dr. Wallace S. Duncan, both of Cleveland.

Dr. Haden will lecture on "The Anemic Patient" and "Deficiencies and Anemia." Dr. Duncan's topics will be "Fractures and Pseudo-Fractures of the Spine" and "Emergency Treatment of Roadside Injuries."

Both physicians will speak at afternoon and evening meetings at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. More than 100 doctors from nine northcentral Ohio counties are expected to attend.

Auto Industry Skips Serious Model Changes

NEW YORK —(INS)— Twenty-three of the nation's leading automobile makers, comprising most of the industry, were pledged today to subordinate work on next year's models to the needs of the national defense program.

Their action followed a warning by William S. Knudsen, member of the national defense advisory committee, that they "had better take another look" if they anticipated making heavy demands on the tool machine industry next year.

The entire output of the tool machine industry for 1941 is already sold out, Knudsen told the motor manufacturers at a luncheon, and demands will be almost quadrupled by the defense program. Knudsen warned them and other industrialists that he was going to "push and push and keep on pushing" for more production.

The action of the motor manufacturers at once gave rise to speculation that next year's models might be eliminated altogether or presented with only the barest of changes.

DECLARES RICHLAND SCHOOLS GIVEN $65,000 MORE IN 1939

Ohio schools received $2,667,843 more and Richland county schools approximately $65,000 more last year from the state than they did in 1937 when the gross sales tax receipts were nearly $5,000,000 higher, H. D. Defenbacher, state director of finance, said today.

Defenbacher issued a comparative statement of sales tax receipts and school grants for 1937, 1938, and 1939, which, he said, was intended "to refute the recent assertion of Dick Smith, assistant state director of education and a hold-over from the Davey administration, relative to state funds for schools."

Smith said several days ago that if the old system of "earmarking" taxes for school funds had not been abolished in 1939, increases in sales tax and other supporting revenues for schools would have made more money available for retiring school foundation and teacher retirement deficits.

Defenbacher pointed out that the schools in 1939 received $1,945,759 more than they otherwise would have obtained under the old "earmarking" system.

Actual distribution for school purposes, the finance director said, were $53,414,778 last year as compared to $50,746,935 in 1937, and $43,297,342 in 1938.

Included in the state allocations was a $49,906 payment on the $168,065 deficit piled up in Mansfield and Richland county before the "earmarking" plan was abandoned. The state also assumed $4,926 interest charges which otherwise would have been paid by the city and county schools here, Defenbacher said.

FLYNN'S SLAM AT PRESS GETS PRINTED HERE

You Should Know Better Than Dare Newspapers to Print Things, Mr. Chairman.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Edward J. Flynn, who as Democratic national chairman is managing President Roosevelt's campaign for a third term, today charged that the newspapers of the country "are under a real dictatorship—a financial dictatorship of their advertisers."

Flynn alleged at his daily press conference that the newspapers were not giving the Democrats a square deal in the way they handled news stories.

He "wondered" if the owners and editors would dare publish his statement about the "dictated press." He doubted that they would.

Flynn seemed nettled as he began his press conference. He reminded the newspaper men that daily they had come to headquarters and asked him questions which he "answered frankly to the best of his knowledge."

"Now I want to reverse the procedure and ask the newspapers some questions," he said, "and I intend to do that at every conference until I get a definite answer."

Flynn said owners, editors and publishers of newspapers have "editorialized a lot about dictatorship" and now he wanted to put a question to the publishers.

"I wish they would tell me why there should be an actual dictatorship of the policy of their papers by the financial interests and by their big advertisers?

"I challenge them to print this, to tell why they feed their readers in the news columns wholesale doses of partisan propaganda instead of adhering to the independence they so often vaunt and give their readers an even break on the actual news of the day?"

Flynn said he'd like to ask the newspapers why they didn't publish the story about "Republican smear tactics" on their front pages as they had published the story a day or two before about "Democratic smear tactics."

"The other day some of you had a story concerning alleged Democratic smear bringing in the race issue," Flynn asserted. "It was displayed on the front page and I am directing your particular attention to the New York Times, which prides itself on the fairness with which it presents the news."

"Yesterday there was another story concerning a Republican smear on the same subject, and it was buried so far back in the paper that I doubt if half the readers ever reached it.

"The difference in the two stories was that the Democratic article was never issued and never circulated while the Republican smear concerned a printed document that had been scattered broadcast."

Three guest speakers were present Tuesday night for a meeting of the Philatelic club, stamp collectors, when they met at the Southern hotel. Principal speaker was George Linn of Columbus, president of the Linprint, Inc., printer of stamp books and collectors of stamps.

He presented an unusual display of bi-centennial issues and gave a comprehensive talk on "Stamp Collecting." Talks were also given by Robert Richardson, of Columbus, editor of Stamp Weekly, and Ray Shepard, also of Columbus, who is secretary of the Linprint company.

Linn conducted a stamp quizz for which he awarded prizes to the winners. More than 30 attended the meeting. Next session of the group will be held at the hotel on Nov. 5.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1940.

This is the time of year when it is already too late to put in your coal supply early.

Even after all the political arguments, some voters are not entirely convinced that either side is 100 per cent right or 100 per cent wrong.

With mobilization of the national guard, registration for selective service, and a variety of campaign meetings, Mansfielders are having few dull moments this week.

Biggest Business Boom Sighted

EXPERTS are saying that business is rapidly moving into an all-time high. It's a boom, all right," says Dr. C. F. Roos of New York, head of the Institute of Applied Econometrics, who provides a statistical service for large corporations.

He thinks the continuous improvement of factory operations will carry production to a point at the end of January that will equal 136 on the old Federal Reserve production index and 144 on the new index. This, he explains, will mean 20 per cent more production than the country had in 1929. It would mean a boom breaking all records next year. By February, he prophesies, our industry will be operating at capacity, and from then on it may be a question of creating new capacities. Rearmament does it, but the effect may run beyond the cause.

National income is already as high as it was in the 1937 transient boom. But prices are lower, so that people don't realize how great industrial activity is. It will be fine if prices can remain moderate while production continues mounting. That would pass the prosperity around more equitably than ever before.

More Than Flag-Waving Needed

AMERICANS are experiencing a rebirth of patriotism. Some of it is emotional, sentimental and unthinking, fully expressed by singing "God Bless America" and wearing flag ornaments on coat lapels. Such procedure is all right as evidence of awakened pride in America, but not a guarantee of the understanding or practice of American democracy. Something more than flag-waving is required for that.

"Our job as educators," says Frederick L. Redifer, director and executive secretary of the Progressive Education Association, "is to direct these things properly, to use these colorful, ritual appeals as an aid to democracy."

He urges the adoption of programs in which teachers, students, parents and the whole community work together to show young people what America is and means. He suggests field trips for pupils to unfamiliar parts of their own cities and towns as well as longer jaunts to other parts of the country.

Loyalty to the government should include loyalty to the principles of the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights. Educators must make these things alive and applicable in the lives of pupils today in order to counteract the teaching of racial intolerance and other prejudices.

Scurrilous Attack Repudiated

ATTRIBUTED to over-enthusiasm of one volunteer worker in the colored division of the Democratic national committee, a pamphlet attacking the German ancestry of Wendell Willkie was promptly and properly repudiated by Julian R. Rainey, chairman of the colored division, and also by Edward T. Flynn, Democratic national committee chairman.

It will be recalled that Mr. Willkie discussed his ancestry in his acceptance speech and his service record in the World war is an open book. In his statement repudiating the scurrilous circular Chairman Flynn said: "No one for a moment questions Mr. Willkie's 100 per cent Americanism."

It is especially unfortunate that such an attack emanated from a colored worker in a political party which withholds voting rights from members of his race in all states in which that party holds undisputed control.

Such chicanery as is practiced on unsuspecting colored voters in those states in which they are permitted to vote is properly classed among the most reprehensible practices of partisan politics.

Sleep Requirements Vary

THE RIGHT AMOUNT of sleep is important. But the right amount differs with the age and make-up of the individual. People who do not get enough are likely to be thin, nervous, restless, with rapid heart-beat and never with enough strength to get comfortably through their days. Too much sleep, on the other hand, may equally lead to loss of weight, because some people who sleep too much aren't hungry enough. But the lazy person who sleeps too much and overeats may get fat and logy and not be good for much.

The individual has to tell by his general condition. If he's full of pep and likes to work and to play and to eat reasonably, he's all right. If he isn't, he'd better take thought about his sleep quota. Maybe his bed is wrong, his window or his pillow.

Dr. I. Bram of Philadelphia questioned 1,000 people about their habits of sleep. Twenty-five thought five hours were all they needed; 60 thought six hours were about right; 150 wanted seven hours; 90 needed nine hours and 20 thought they needed ten. But 655, more than three-fifths of the whole number, thought eight hours were the proper number.

This is an interesting division. Alfred the Great of England, is credited with having decided, more than a thousand years ago, that man should divide his 24-hour day into three parts—eight for work, eight for sleep and eight for all the other activities combined?

Getting Better Acquainted

THERE was a university at Lima, Peru, before the Mayflower brought the first Pilgrims to America, and even before Sir Walter Raleigh made his tragic effort to colonize Virginia in 1585. This year the first summer school ever offered in South America exclusively for North American students was held at the Lima University. Special study groups went from Harvard college and the State Teachers College of Pennsylvania. The Committee on Cultural Relations with Latin America sent another group. Sixty-five teachers from all parts of the United States attended.

These were picked students, sympathetic with the region they were visiting and alert to the educational opportunity they shared. They must have made a friendly impression on their hosts. They should provide a considerable leaven of South American understanding in their social and educational circles at home this winter.

Listen World!

Task of Happiness

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

BLUE? Fed up with life? Just going through the motions, too sick of it all to care any more? Then listen:

He was dying. No man had ever clutched life more lustily than he, yet never—even as a child—had he been able to take his fill of its beauty. Always there was the dreadful business of those broken lungs, straining to give and take the laughter that he loved. Now even that limited delight was failing. His eyes stared dully from a waxen mask, his hand sprawled limp upon the written page.

Yet, even so, Robert Louis Stevenson rejoiced, and prayed for strength and zest to hand that joy along! Of all human prayers, there was none nobler than that cry for a quickened heart. Nor one more needed than in these nightmare days when our own spirits move like desperate sleepwalkers through the dark. Remember it?

If I have faltered more or less
In my great task of happiness;
If I have moved among my race
And shown no glorious morning face;
If beams from happy human eyes
Have moved me not; if morning skies,
Books, and my food, and summer rain
Knocked on my sullen heart in vain:—
Lord, Thy most pointed pleasure take
And stab my spirit broad awake;
Or, Lord, if too obdurate I,
Choose Thou, before that spirit die,
A piercing pain, a killing sin,
And to my dead heart run them in!

"In my great task of happiness"—does it startle you to think of happiness in that way? It did me, the first time I read it. Happiness wasn't recommended as a task, or even highly boosted as virtue, 40 years ago. Life was real and life was earnest, but you were supposed to take it on the down beat.

You might, of course, Bear Your Cross with a certain amount of cheerfulness. But there had to be a Cross, and if you didn't show it, there was something wrong. The idea of busting into a big, broad grin just because you were alive in this loveliest of worlds was plainly heathen. And you had only yourself to blame if Fate handed you a special shellackin' for your levity.

All of which credo was as familiar to R. L. S. as his dour Scottish storms and pinchpenny thrift. And its grimness would seem to have suited his tortured body. But there was something in that body that rose above tortures and had only contempt for grimness. To him the first and loveliest of all virtues and duties was—JOY. No mere Pollyanna patter, no meek, mouse-like resignation to a God of Wrath—but glorious, red-blooded rejoicing and gratitude for the abundant beauty, wonder and friendliness of the world in which he lived! And surely his Father must approve and accept such joy, else who had He molded that world in such glory?

Yet always, behind the laughter, there was the pain. And there must often have been the same dragging lassitude which clutches so many of us now. But these things need not break one, said R. L. S. The One who gave this miracle of life, did not mean that you should lose your interest in it. If your delight and curiosity had dimmed, it was not life's fault. It was because you had let your eyes grow dull and your heart listless. It was up to you to keep yourself eager and gay and warm, he cried.

For happiness does not just happen! It doesn't arise automatically in pleasant circumstances. It is our first and constant duty to keep the heart alive—even though its hard, indifferent crust must needs be pierced by pain.

Blue? Disgusted? Tired of everything? Read those words again . . . take that laugh that a man passed on though his eyes were glazing in death.

Timely Editorial

Totalitarian Hypocrisy.

The war correspondent of Mussolini's paper Popolo d'Italia attacks the United States for material support extended to Great Britain. He says the Italo-German blockade would end "this odious system which is causing large quantities of blood of European youth to be shed on the battlefield." We are assuming great responsibility, he contends, when we give help to the British such as extends the struggle and prevent Mussolini and Hitler from making quick work of the British.

That is typical of the hypocrisy of the European warmongers. Il Duce's agent would put the blame on us and the British for the "large quantities of the blood shed on the battlefield." That comes with poor grace from a war lord who waited until he thought it was safe to get into the fray and then plunged in with the hope of sharing in the booty. Nobody was threatening Italy and there was no need for any Italian blood being shed.—Indianapolis Star.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Things I'll never forget . . . The shout that went up in "Dodsworth" when Walter Huston took off his pants. . . . The roar that all but drowned out Gertrude Lawrence in the "kiss" scene with Donn Cooke in "Skylark." . . . This came when Gertrude, receiving a cold peck on the cheek from her husband, said, "I'm not a girl to ask for passion on Sunday afternoon, Tony, but try again, will you?" . . . The candor of Katharine Brush, who wrote "Young Man of Manhattan," telling of the time she was accused of shoplifting in a Pittsburgh department store. . . . Edna Ferber's description of a conversation between two young men in a restaurant in Jerusalem. . . . One of them suggested a game of golf. . . . "Cant make it," replied his friend, "I've got to run over to Nazareth this afternoon." . . . The guttural tones of Garbo in her first spoken passage on the screen, "Give Me a Scotch and Soda," in "Anna Christie." . . . The first time I ever saw my name over a news story. . . . The first time I ever covered an execution. . . . The denunciation scene in "Dead End," when the mother turns against her killer-son. . . . Riding half way across the country in a plane one night with a lanky, silent figure whom I failed to recognize until he got out at Chicago—Gary Cooper. . . . The stunned silence and the expressions of incredulity on people's faces when the flash came that Will Rogers was dead. . . . Getting caught in a Communist parade in Union Square, while trying to break through to a subway station, and somebody pushing me and yelling, "Stay in line, Comrade, stay in line."

PAUL DRAPER, like so many illustrous artists—W. Somerset Maugham, Jane Frohman, etc. —stutters when he talks. . . . But stuttering never interfered with Maugham's story telling . . . It hasn't interferred with Draper's dancing. . . . It is conceded by almost everyone that he is the equal, and frequently, the superior of even the likeable Fred Astaire. . . . I for one feel that he is. . . . He has one number that is a tap to minuet . . . No one around here has ever seen anything like it. I asked him how he happened to think of it, and he replied, "Oh, you have to try everything when you're in this business." . . . If you ever get over to the Versailles, where he is dancing now, ask him to do it for you. . . . He's pretty decent about requests.

THE Pathe people have turned over hundreds of miles of newsreels to the Museum of Modern Art. . . . It's a cavalcade of history for the last 30 years. . . . One of the impressive passages shows Teddy Roosevelt returning from his African hunting expeditions. . . . Another shot shows Mussolini marching on Rome. . . . You can also see the 1924 putsch in Munich led by the then unknown Hitler. . . . There's also a scene of Hitler addressing his followers from a window, after he has been sentenced to prison.

Another old newsreel, though not so very old at that, we caught at a "re-run" house in 6th avenue today. . . . It showed Alphonso, king of the Spaniards, addressing the camera in very good english. . . . This was taken just a year before Alphonso fled his throne. The gist of his remarks was that if Americans touring Spain ever ran afoul of the traffic laws he, Alphonso, would be glad to go to court and get them out.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Cabinet Divided On Jap Embargo, Pressure Stopped Earlier Plans

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Some of the most important discussions ever held regarding the Far East are now taking place behind the scenes in Washington. And as frequently happens, there is a division of opinion inside the cabinet.

This division is not over firmness in the policy toward Japan. There is complete unanimity on that point. The debate is whether to impose an almost complete embargo on the sale of raw materials to Japan—particularly fuel oil.

One group within the cabinet sees no reason why we should keep on feeding the Japanese war machine. The other group—and this includes the entire state department—fears that if we cut off the sale of these supplies too abruptly, Japan will strike back.

To get the full significance of the present picture, one must compare it with an almost identical situation which faced the Roosevelt administration when Japan invaded China in 1937. For the most part the details of this story have not been told.

When Japan first launched its invasion, a series of conferences took place between Roosevelt, Hull and the British Embassy during which both sides agreed that a Japanese conquest of China, with its cheap labor and vast raw materials, would mean a new industrial empire in Asia which eventually would challenge Australia, New Zealand and the United States in the Pacific.

Secretary Hull went further than this, and pointed out that the dictators of Europe — Hitler and Mussolini—were just beginning to show signs of going on the rampage, and that while the United States could not afford to get mixed up in Europe, it did have treaty obligations in China. He felt that to invoke the peace machinery of the world in order to make an object lesson of a dictator nation—Japan—might have a very salutary effect upon Hitler and Mussolini.

Long Distance Blockade.

AS a result of these conversations, a plan was evolved whereby the United States, Britain and France invoked the peace machinery of the League of Nations and the Nine Power Pact guaranteeing the sovereignty of China. Backbone of the plan was a long distance naval blockade worked out by the admirals of the U. S. navy and the British admiralty. Under this plan British war ships at Singapore and U. S. ships along the California coast and Panama undertook to starve out the Japanese military machine by cutting off scrap iron, copper, cotton, fuel oil and gasoline.

Japan, absolutely dependent upon these raw materials, has to get them either via the United States or via Singapore. And because of the long distances between Japan and California, and between Japan and Singapore (seven days sailing) it would have been impossible for the Japanese fleet to attack either the British or American navies.

The element of distance was the essence of the plan. And Admiral Leahy, who helped conceive it and was head of the navy at that time, estimated that the Japanese war machine would be starved out in three months without the United States or Britain losing anything save a few gunboats on the Yangtze.

With some misgivings the state department finally OK'd the idea, and the British detailed four battleships, twelve cruisers and twenty destroyers to sail through Suez to Singapore.

But just at that moment—the summer of 1937—the dictators of Europe, playing just as close ball with Japan as today, started their submarine "piracy" campaign in the Mediterranean, sinking two or three British merchant vessels near Spain and causing the British to keep their ships in the Mediterranean instead of sending them on to Singapore.

So the long distance naval blockade was suspended.

Brussels Conference.

HOWEVER, it was revived again a month later after the Mediterranean crisis had calmed. In preparation for the second attempt, President Roosevelt delivered his famous Chicago speech in which he warned the American people that the time might come when they would want to impose a "quarantine" against an aggressor nation.

Shortly thereafter, a conference of the Nine Powers which had guaranteed the sovereignty of China — a treaty initiated by Charles Evans Hughes and Warren G. Harding at the Washington Conference in 1921—was called at Brussels. Norman Davis, who headed the American delegation to this conference, stopped at Hyde Park before he sailed. The president told him to go the limit in molding public opinion and putting into effect the original peace machinery against Japan.

In conformity with these instructions, Davis wrote the first draft of his speech while on the steamer en route to Brussels, and radioed it back to the state department for approval. He was amazed to receive back a completely rewritten version from which all the teeth had been extracted. So his opening speech sounded like a Sunday school sermon.

From that point on, every move Norman Davis attempted at Brussels was stymied by the state department. The British once again proposed the plan of cutting off Japan's war materials, but Davis had to reply that his government apparently had changed its mind.

When he returned he found that his speech had been rewritten by Hugh Wilson, later ambassador to Germany and leader of the appeasement clique inside the state department. Also Jim Farley had been worried over the political repercussions from the quarantine speech at Chicago.

Whether the president knew about the change in policy never was established. He had been off the California coast—fishing.

* * *

Panay Incident.

THE plan of a long distance naval blockade against Japan was revived once more before war broke in Europe—at the time of the Panay incident in December 1938.

At that time Admiral Leahy, chief of naval operations, reported to the president that the navy was better prepared than ever before and could cut off Japan's fuel oil, iron, copper and cotton almost without the help of Great Britain. However, the British, who had a gunboat sunk by the Japanese simultaneously with the Panay, were anxious to co-operate.

The decision as to whether the embargo-blockade would be revived again was made in the office of Secretary Hull one Sunday afternoon. Admiral Leahy was present; also Hugh Wilson, who believed in appeasement toward Japan.

Leahy argued that the Japanese were bound to cause trouble sooner or later, and that the United States had best starve out her military machine now, when conditions were favorable and before the British became involved in Europe.

Hugh Wilson, on the other hand, paced up and down the room arguing that such a move meant war. In the end he became so wrought up that he had to lie down on Hull's couch to rest.

The decision finally went against Leahy. And now, two years later, with the British fleet fighting a desperate battle in European waters and unable to help in the Orient; with the French defeated and French naval bases in Indo-China virtually in the hands of Japan, the same issue has arisen in Washington.

At this late date we have finally cut off scrap iron and high test gasoline, and the big question inside the cabinet is whether to go further and embargo all of Japan's war supplies.

(Editor's Note—Another Merry-Go-Round column giving the inside of the present cabinet debate over embargoes against Japan, will follow tomorrow.)

Health And Diet

Children Need Good Breakfast.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE American institution of breakfast, I am given to understand, is in danger of at least partial eclipse. The danger affects households where both parents work. There is little or no danger in this when there are no children, but with a school child in the household, authorities agree a serious problem may arise.

Malnutrition in American school children of grade school age is much more frequent than supposed. The school child often cannot depend upon the likelihood of getting a nourishing lunch so breakfast becomes the mainstay of the nourishment for the early part —the hard working part—of the day. When both mother and father have to rush off to work early in the morning, leaving a child more or less to get breakfast for himself, the result is a badly balanced meal, mostly out of cans.

Breakfast Important.

The school child's breakfast is the most important meal of the day. It should be hot, it should be nutritious and it should have a plentiful supply of fresh foods. It should include a fruit, a well-cooked oatmeal with cream and sugar, milk, and, possibly, eggs or meat.

Prunes, oranges, baked apples, applesauce, peaches, grapes, canteloupe, raspberries, toast, butter, cream of wheat, jam, graham crackers, jelly, cornmeal muffins, bacon, marmalade, fish, toasted corn flakes, cocoa, cracked wheat, wheatena, rice, puffed rice, farina, rolled oats, germea, hominy grits, chicken, wheat cakes, maple syrup, waffles, sorghum.

Parents' Chore.

If you, the parents, see to it that your children have a good variety of those things for breakfast, you need not worry.

What the school dietitians are up against is the malnutrition of school children due to the carelessness and indifference of parents.

Take charge of the breakfast of a nation and you may be indifferent to who makes the laws or the songs either.

Malnutrition in children of the school age is a very common cause of deficiency in scholarship. In its early and less developed forms it is not always easy to detect. It frequently goes without recognition for a long time because the child is less under rigid supervision at this age than he was when younger.

Early recognition is, however, important, and the energies of health and school authorities are being directed more and more to this end.

As Others See It

This Explains It.

According to the Dies committee that pinkish tint attributed to some Hollywood actors was just an excess application of rouge.—Columbus Dispatch.

Oversight.

The straw polls show no weakening in the historic attitudes of Maine and Vermont. It is strange these two never demanded a corridor across New Hampshire.—Detroit News.

A Farmer's Diary

In The Orchard

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE hilltop apple orchard on a neighbor's farm is not loaded with fruit as it was last year. We walked through it and on beyond to where he has 300 newly planted peach trees, with potatoes growing between. At this elevation, the peach leaves were not frozen —nor were the potato tops. The vines of a few pink squash, though, were dark sprawling spots upon the ground. The hollow vine oozed with moisture in places, and near the end it looked like a horny twisted rope. We marveled at the growth a peach tree makes its first summer. In three more years, he will have a salable crop, if nothing happens.

We looked down the long rows of large old apple trees that stretched far to the south, like leafy corridors, the leaves nearly meeting overhead. Occasional branches—even an occasional tree —were loaded with fruit. We saw one well-proportioned tree whose branches bent down, one upon another, even to the topmost sprays, with pinkish red Stayman's Winesap apples. I stood still and looked at it. Even had my eyes been closed, I think I should have recognized the Winesap from the aromatic odor that flowed out on the quiet air.

Beneath the Baldwin, Jonathan and King trees, large red heaps of apples lay upon the well mulched surface. Whenever the breeze blew, uncertain patches of sunlight played across the tops and sides of these ruddy heaps like something animate. Within these sunlit spaces, the red surface of the apples glowed like a warm flame of scarlet. To the north and west, the yellow waxy folds of a Grimes Golden tree reared its treasured head. I admired the symmetry of it's tough well-formed branches and knew its characteristic fragrance 30 feet away. It has a peculiar spicy flavor that is tantalizing and the firm juicy flesh is so crisp that it snaps and crackles as you bite into the rough rich golden surface.

At intervals we saw and heard an apple drop, even without the movement of a single leaf. It bounded slightly in the lush grass and came to rest. The dark green surface, all around, was dotted with such fallen fruit.

This is the time for gleaning and storing winter apples. Then, during the stormy days and long winter evenings, we shall have within reach the sunshine and the rich wine of the autumn season.

THE WORLD IS LIKE THAT + +

CHAPTER XIII

Norma's grandmother had also lunched at the country club, although Jocelyn, Norma and their little group did not discover her until the meal was over. She was then seen to be at a bridge table in a corner room, furiously sweeping a pack of cards for the cut. She looked approvingly at the little party as they passed by and said absently, "So glad you're having a wonderful time, darling!" and then, in surprise, to one of the women who made up the bridge quartette, "Didn't that child only get here this morning? Good heavens!" After which she observed. "You, Harriett. Mine was a club. Blue pack. No bid," all with the swiftness and definiteness of a flash of lightning.

Jean Kimberley's mother was also at the club—a handsome woman of thirty-five or -six; she had come up to the girls, turned a dramatic, intense concentration upon Norma, asked her a dozen affectionate questions, and finally come around to the subject of Phil. How was Daddy? He'd been in New York. Tell him Aunt Jane was glad they both were home.

Jocelyn studied her with great interest as she talked, remembering that Norma had said this attractive grass widow was interested in Philip Fordyce, and when Nita Royce came running down the club steps after them she looked at her too with a little stir at her pulses. She was another who wanted to marry Phil, was she? She was hardly distinguishable from Jane Kimberley, equally animated, reckless in speech, sensationally pretty, but indeed, Jocelyn thought, all these women were pretty.

They went into town in the big Fordyce car, and saw a picture of which Jocelyn had but a vague impression. Life itself was too thrilling at the moment. Afterward they went to a hotel to dance; the girls apparently much amused but, Jocelyn suspected, deeply chagrined at having with them only one young man. However, they picked up two other young men who went to the same prep school as Johnny Kimberley, and after that things became hilarious again. The others had cocktails; Norma had tomato juice and looked sternly at Jocelyn; but Jocelyn shook her head at the cocktails and only went so far as to promise Norma that if her father permitted them she should have them the next time.

At six they dropped the others and went on alone, and then Jocelyn spoke seriously to Norma: "Children your age shouldn't order cocktails in public places like that."

"Children! But my dear," Norma said, dragging the last word into two syllables, "you're dating yourself! I mean everyone does it, and everyone goes on being quite decent and I mean what's the harm?"

"I don't think you should, and I'll be surprised if your father does," said Jocelyn.

"Oh, Dad!" Norma said with a pitying laugh. "But he's not, after all, any better judge than Mother?" she demanded innocently.

"She knows there's no answer to that," Jocelyn thought. Aloud she said, "But you're with him, now. And I think it's for you to set the example, Norma," she added, after a moment. "You're a natural leader; if you set a fashion, they'll follow it."

She could sense that Norma was pleased; a vaguely gratified look came over her sulky little face; she said in a mollified tone: "I'm not even out yet!"

"That wouldn't matter. You're a gentlewoman," Jocelyn said adroitly. "You've been places; you've had advantages that these other girls haven't. And your position will make you important, no matter where you go or whom you marry. Anyway," Jocelyn finished, "while you're with me I don't want you to drink cocktails. And if you're not with me, whom will you be with?" she finished, smiling. "Miss Sanderson is all ready to take up her duties. She feels that I am not qualified to act as chaperon to a girl of your position."

"Who said she did?" Norma demanded, startled into sudden interest in something other than her own affairs.

"She did, herself. She called on me soon after I arrived here. She asked me if I spoke German and French and how much I lived abroad, and I don't think I made a very good showing." Jocelyn's mouth widened into a smile; her eyes were still serious.

"Well, the old busybody!" ejaculated Norma.

When they reached home Mrs. Fordyce's voice and Philip's voice could be heard coming from one of the big rooms upstairs, and Norma went in to them at once, leaving Jocelyn to proceed to her own room, to take her bath and get into dinner clothes. It was after seven o'clock when she crossed the upper hall to see if Norma was ready. She opened Norma's door cautiously, for she had advised a nap before dinner; immediately she stepped in, her face flushing.

The room was striped with tiers of drifting cigarette smake; Norma was at the dressing table with her gypsy mop of silky, smoky black hair into a tumble, and her talonlike little hands rubbing something into it from a bottle.

"Mattress is at dinner," said Norma of her maid. "And my head was itching. I think I have lice."

The other person in the room laughed huskily at this, without changing his position. He was a youth of perhaps twenty, generously built, with a mop of red hair. He was dressed in golfing wear, and had stretched himself comfortably upon the satin and lacy surface of the bed, cramming half a dozen small pillows under his head, and so being enabled to smile amiably at the women over his cigarette.

"Norma," Jocelyn said, in a tone that did not attempt to disquise her displeasure and shock. Norma laughed, unembarrassed, and the young man immediately sat up.

"Yep; I'm getting your pillows and whatnots all messed," he said. He yawned and flung his long athletic arms in the air. "Boy, am I sleepy!" he said. "I played thirty-six holes. I was so tired I was an emergency case, but I just heard Norma was back and so in I came, and weaving my way busily upstairs I just dodged what's-her-name-Mattress."

"Norma, your father wouldn't have liked to come in and find you this way," Jocelyn said, still too much disturbed to know quite what course to take. "Hadn't you better comb your hair back and come into the other room?"

"No; she hadn't," said the young man easily, grinding out his cigarette on a tray and rising to his feet with a fresh series of yawns and stretchings. "For I'm on my way. I've not been introduced—Miss Britton? How d' you do, Miss Britton? I'm Charles van der Lipp, three words. My mother thinks it's a French name, and she pronounces Charles the French way. But it's Dutch. I'm a little meinherr, eating klopjes and skating on the Rembrandt van Rijn. Goodbye, my darling," he said to Norma, "I love you with your hair that way. I'm so glad to be free of your boudoir!"

"Did he actualy walk in here as he said?" Jocelyn said when he was gone. "Do you know him very well? He shouldn't," she went on, shaking pillows and jerking covers straight, "do a stupid thing like that. Mussing things up with his dirty golf shoes!"

She did not look at Norma as she spoke, but she sensed a sulphurous silence over by the dressing table.

"He's my best friend," Norma said presently, in a voice of suppressed fury. "I played with him when I was only six years old!"

"He seems, in spite of his disorderly ways, a nice boy," Jocelyn commented mildly, still busy.

"I happen to like him very much!" Norma said icily.

"You are a silly little fool, and I am another to keep a job like this," Jocelyn thought, "but there is something about this whole madhouse that fascinates me." Aloud she said, glancing at a tray containing two small glasses, "You sent downstairs for cocktails?"

"Certainly!" Norma answered haughtily.

There was a silence. Jocelyn sat down and looked at the other girl. "Norma, that's not nice," she said. "If you don't know that, he should."

"I suppose you know what is nice?" Norma murmured to her own reflection in the mirror.

"I seem to know what isn't" Jocelyn answered, a trifle more sharply than she had intended to speak.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

The sympathy for Philip Veritzen which I had felt during the first part of his story, vanished incontinently at his smug revelation that he had tested Mary's qualifications as a wife for Noel as well as a Veritzen star, in the ordeals through which he had put her since her marriage to Noel.

I believed his statement "upon all that I hold holy," that he had not planned to ruin Mary's marriage or to take her cherished leading role in his play away from her. But this arrogance of attitude toward her, though unconscious, and the result of his heritage and training, was something that I found it hard to forgive.

"Purposely," Philip Veritzen went on, "I did not tell either Noel or Mary of the reason I wished to separate them within six months of their marriage, to send Mary to the farm, and to make Noel the lonely guardian of a furnished house in the city which I had destined as the sanctuary of my liege lady and her daughter.

"Incidentally," he digressed with a slight smile, "that house is still waiting. My plans were changed by the activities of the revolutionists, and Olga had to be taken to a hospital. Then your father decided that she must come here,—oh!—very correctly, of course, and so she has not yet seen the refuge I prepared for her."

It was again Lillian who answered him. I could not have done so, for I fancied I detected a slight resentment against my father in his voice, and was correspondingly furious at what I termed his lack of appreciation of the manner in which my father had turned into victory his egregiously futile and mistaken efforts to rescue the royal prisoners on the pirate ship, errors of judgment and action which almost resulted in the loss of the enormous fortune Veritzen had provided as ransom, and in the worst of all possible tragedies, Noel's death as well.

"She'll like it all the better for the delay, Phil," Lillian said comfortingly, and he threw her a grateful smile before going on.

"Mary came through that ordeal beautifully," Noel's father went on, and with amazed gratification I noted a distinct note of pride in his voice. Was it possible that the affection for his daughter-in-law which he had simulated since her marriage for the sake of appearances, was beginning to have reality in it?

"Then, having satisfied myself on that point," he went on, "I turned my attention to the vitally important question—to me—was she a real trouper?

"As you know, Lillian," he turned his eyes on his old friend—"I have an unalterable belief that no actress can effectively simulate the great fundamental emotions unless she has experienced them. Mary had known love and marriage, but I did not think she had known jealousy and potential heartbreak. I deliberately engineered her absence from Noel, and the throwing of Noel and Olina together, not only because I wished to test her as an actress, but as a wife as well. Would she believe in Noel under those conditions?"

"They really did not constitute a final test," he went on coolly, "for Noel was not particularly convincing in his role."

"Do you mean?" I flared unable to keep silent longer, "that Noel was aware of your scheme and a partner in it?"

"Unfortunately not," he said imperturbably. "He is not a good enough actor to trust with a deception, even if he would have consented to it, which I knew he would not. And he was too much in love with his wife to make his enforced association with Olina plausible. So I had to give up that scheme and put down another mark in my daughter-in-law's favor."

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, October 17

An interesting and possibly eventful day is presaged from the astral potencies for intervention. This may be felt mainly in the realm of the personal life, home, feelings, sentiments, in social plans and prestige as well as in all pertaining to these in a cultural and psychological phase. There should be a definite sense of security in the home and in domestic and social stability and soundness, with much felicity and worth manifesting. However, in public or group activities there is need for caution.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which the affairs of heart and home may be placed on foundations of safety, security and soundness. Cultural and artistic advancement, all stable and enduring growth may contribute much to happiness and satisfaction. But group or public operations centering in similar objectives call for precaution, as altruistic or utopian purpose may run into intrigue or pitfalls.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

KNOW THEIR HABITS

We all are familiar with the habits of most bridge players, including ourselves—at least some of those habits. For instance, against a small slam bid, we almost never expect to see someone underlead an ace in an unbid suit. But we do expect to see plenty of cases in which a player underleads a queen. In fact, we all do that plenty of times. Bearing in mind such simple factors can result in our reading the opponent's lead accurately a goodly per centage of the time, and so making contracts which otherwise would be mussed up.

A mistake on the very first trick defeated South. West led the heart 2 and South called the K from dummy. The A overtook it and East returned the 10 to the J and Q, the contest being over almost before it started.

What a simple bit of thinking South had to do in order to assure the success of his contract. First he could tell himself that nobody but a fool would have led low from the A against a small slam at No Trumps. It was therefore certain East had the A of hearts, but might not have the Q. South therefore should have played his lowest heart from the dummy. If East had tried to knock off the K later by holding up his A on this trick, the 10 would have been taken by the J. Play of the 10 would have made it certain East did not have the Q. So a small one on the next round could have been for a finesse of the 8, forcing the A.

If, however, on the small heart East played his A, then upon return of the suit South could have led his J to be finessed safely, putting up the K if West covered with the marked Q, thus dropping the 10. Playing the suit that way South would surely make three tricks in hearts, plus more than enough others, even with the diamonds not breaking.

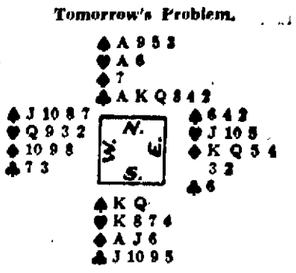
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

If East had bid diamonds on the first round, and West leads the heart 2, how should South play to make 7-No Trumps on this deal?

DO SEWING.

There were 20 members of the Service League present for an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert Black on West Second street yesterday. During the session, they made hospital pads for the Richland County Tuberculosis sanatorium, stuffed toys for Christmas baskets and did general sewing. A covered-dish luncheon was served at noon. Mrs. F. David Boals will have the meeting of Nov. 12 at her home on Highland avenue.

Advice from Golden-Russell —with an ulterior motive

"Buy even your moderately priced clothes in a high style store. You profit by the same better-than-ordinary taste and discrimination, whether you spend much or little."

At the beginning of a new season we repeat this advice—because it has no season. It is as good today as it was five years ago—as good for you as for us. No better. It will take little reflection for you to accept it as essentially reasonable and sound. We expect to dress many women, very beautifully, this Fall—at very moderate cost.
